PLAIN AND FANCY

[From San Prancisco Call.] California Women.

I know of nothing 'neath the sun or moon So sweet to love, so very sweet to prize, As lovely woman verging into bloom, And gozing upward through two flashing eyes, The mirrors of her soul undimmed by gloom Of hard regrets, despair, or uscless sighs; Of such a woman man might well feel proud ;

Aye! sing her praise sione, or in a crowd. Where tides come in, come up and kiss the strand Her words to my young soul were melody,

And oh ! the slient pressure of her hand Was pleasure boundless as eternity; And, as we trod the yielding, wave-washed sand, f felt that woman-lovely woman-rules At will, the hearts of sages, kings and fools.

It is no wonder that in ages old, Stout Antony, a conquering soldier brave, Did of a woman's charms an idol mould, · To which he bowed, a cringing, pliant slave So runs the tale which has been often told;

And yet 'lis said he's half or whole a knave

Who would not give a throne or risk his life, To win a lovely woman for his wife. In this young city, fair Pacific's pride, Recurely nestled by the Golden Gate; The world all knows that here at least reside The fairest maids of any land or State;

Our coast is laved by calm Pacific's tide, Our countless mines in hidden wealth are great Yet more than these, our boast our wines and farms We proudly toast our women's matchless charms.

Yes, California stands alone, apart ; The brightest gem in young Columbia's crown; And San Francisco breathes, the Western mart Of commerce, learning, beauty and renown; She is the fount, the full and pulsing heart Which sends the tide of energy around;

While woman, lovely woman, ever strives To smooth the broken surface of our lives. San Francisco, August, 1875. OWEY McARDLE.

VARIETY.

Per Him on Ice.-A Covington man died and they put him on ice, but he woke in the night and yelled out: "Why don't you put some wood in that stove !"

MUST BE .- " John, I wish you'd close that door," said an irritable father to his son. " Your mother must be scolding somebody at the other end of the hall, there's such a draft in that quar-

A man who can take the place which God puts him in, and stick to it and fight it through, and stand a man every inch, has, I think, waiting an estate of glory such as has not been known in

There have been many definitions of a gentleman, but the prettiest and most pathetic is that given by a young lady. "A gentleman," says she, "is a human being combining a woman's tenderness with a man's courage."

THE FIRST.—Copy was out. The devil picked up a paper and said, "Here's something 'about a woman'—must I cut it out?" "No!" thundered the editor ; " the first disturbance ever created in the world was occasioned by the devil fooling about a woman."

Bill Bowline comes and he says to me, He says to me, he says, says he, "What is the Rule of the Road at sea?" I says to him, says I (that's me), "Whether ashore, or whether at sea, The Rule of the Road, folk seems to agree, Is to suddenly launch in eternity Any one not quite handy to see

If the helm turned to starboard or port should be, As we learn by a late catastropee."-Punch. " Papa did you see those nice little guns down to the store?" asked a little six-year-old boy.

"Yes, Harry, I saw them. But I have so many children to feed and clothe that I cannot afford to buy you one," replied his father, seriously. Little Harry glanced at the baby in the cradie with no loving expression to his face. Finally, he said: "Well, papa, I'll tell you what you can do, you can swap little Tommy for a gun."

Max Adler says: We learn from an exchange that "The Legislature of Massachusetts has lately passed a law making it necessary that a dozen eggs weigh one and one-half pounds." We approve of this. The hens have too long had their own way in this business of laying eggs, and they have constantly defrauded the public. It is high time this outrage was crushed, and we are glad that the Legislature of Massachusetts is going to do it.

If free American citizens are to be imposed upon with impunity by debauched and corrupt chickens, the government for which William Penn fought and John Hancock died, is a disgraceful failure. Hereafter Massachusette hens will either have to lay two-ounce eggs or emigrate. The people will submit to their tyranny no longer. They have borne the yolk until it has become unendurable. They denounce present prices for present eggs as eggstortion, and in hens they demand a reform with the determination to draw up this chicken bill and pullet through the legislature.

George Alfred Towsend thus describes the author of "Thanatopsis," and the originator of Governor Tilden for the presidency: Bryant is a small, spare man, who looks as if he would be cold if you touched him with his clothes off. At the top of his slender medium figure is a large, head, covered with hair and heard of a rather luxuriant white, streaked with yellow. His skin is reddish. His eyes are blue, and shine in a winter night like the heads of two handirons when there is no fire, His articulation is distinct and cold. He has a frightfully good memory, and if you tell him a lie he will catch you in about a second. You compliment him therefore, at your peril. About seventeen years ago I helped to name a literary society in Philadelphia in his honor, and I happened to mention the fact to the old man. He drew a bead on me in a moment. He seemed to recollect it exactly, and said: "It still exists, don't it?" I said, "I think so," and I believe it does; but I was afraid to say I be-lieved so, for the old man looked at me in such a cold autumnal way that I hardly knew how to

She was crossing the street. Dressed in the height of fashion, with skirts drawn tightly about her form, it was with some difficulty that she could move her limbs sufficiently to walk. When at about the middle of the crosswalk, she dropped a well-filled wallet out of her hand. Then the trouble began in earnest. She stooped over in front to pick it up, but her fingers could not reach the wallet by at least eighteen inches. She changed her parasol into her right hand, and tried to reach sideways for the wallet. It was no go however, for her fingers did not reach anywhere near on her knees, but she might as well endeavored to pick up a drop of water with her ear. She reached backward, but her hand only extended downward on a level with her hips. She appeared to be much embarassed, We could almost hear her regret that she had not her "stoop-over" dress on. The wallet, no doubt, contained considerable money, for had it been trifling sum she would have stepped over it and passed on. What could she do? No one seemed to be passing at the homent who could assist her. Ah! a thought
